Pa. GOP lawmakers seek access to 7 million voters' personal information

State Senate Republicans voted on Wednesday to subpoena a number of records from the Pennsylvania Department of State in an effort to investigate the 2020 presidential election, including the driver's license and Social Security numbers — the last four digits — of the nearly 7 million voters who cast ballots. Approved by a 7-4 party-line vote, the Senate Intergovernmental Operations Committee will subpoena all communications from the state department to county officials, details on guidance and procedures and training materials related to the November 2020 election and the May 2021 primary election. The subpoena will also cover lists containing the names, dates of birth, driver's license numbers, last four digits of Social Security numbers and dates of the last voting activity of millions of voters.

COVID-19 is our common enemy, but we're battling one another instead of fighting it

You've probably heard of "the fog and friction of war." It's a phrase based in part on the writings of 18th Century Prussian General Carl von Clausewitz, a military theorist. I've heard it used, fittingly, with regard to Afghanistan. But it's also apt for our current wars over COVID-19. "The fog" is created by a lack of credibility in information and intelligence reports, which Clausewitz categorized as often contradictory and mostly uncertain. We've sure seen that in the war against the virus. Everything from masks are necessary to masks are useless. From vaccines protect us to vaccines might not protect us from variants. From booster shots are needed to booster shots might not be needed.
